Demand signal		8/10

*Realistic upside assumes filling one third of your open nights at your current rate — a conservative scenario, not a promise; open nights may include dates you have deliberately blocked. How we scored: everything above comes from your live public listing — the 3-month availability calendar, photo set, title, description and review signals, captured on the date on the cover. Scores weight what guests see first when deciding to click: title and cover photo, then photos, then copy. No third-party estimates are used. Demand signal reflects how much of your next 90 days is already booked — steady bookings mean demand exists and presentation, not location, is the constraint. Where the diagnosis cites your review count, that's the listing's own public review total at capture (a new listing starts at zero even when the host profile has reviews).

What's holding you back

- 1 With 35 photos, 12 more than the median photo count of 23, consider removing lower-quality images to improve the overall visual appeal, given that 50% of next 90 days are open
- 2 At £79.4 per night, your rate is -24% vs the cohort median of £104.90, indicating a potential opportunity to increase pricing or enhance amenities to match the market
- 3 With 50% occupancy over the next 90 days, and a cohort median occupancy of 48.9%, focusing on improving the listing's visibility and appeal could help fill the remaining 45 open nights
