*Realistic upside assumes filling one third of your open nights at your current rate — a conservative scenario, not a promise; open nights may include dates you have deliberately blocked. How we scored: everything above comes from your live public listing — the 3-month availability calendar, photo set, title, description and review signals, captured on the date on the cover. Scores weight what guests see first when deciding to click: title and cover photo, then photos, then copy. No third-party estimates are used. Demand signal reflects how much of your next 90 days is already booked — steady bookings mean demand exists and presentation, not location, is the constraint. Where the diagnosis cites your review count, that's the listing's own public review total at capture (a new listing starts at zero even when the host profile has reviews).

What's holding you back

- 1 Raise the nightly rate from £89 to around £95; you're already 64.1% booked (32 open nights) and the market median rate is £90.20, so a modest increase can boost revenue without hurting occupancy.
- 2 Rewrite the title to include high search keywords ("3 Bedroom", "parking", "central", "Netflix"); the current title is only 25 characters and scores 3/10, limiting SEO visibility.
- 3 Reorder the photo gallery so the first image is the front exterior with driveway; with 25 photos (above the cohort median of 23) you have ample coverage, but the lead image currently doesn't showcase the parking advantage.
