*Realistic upside assumes filling one third of your open nights at your current rate — a conservative scenario, not a promise; open nights may include dates you have deliberately blocked. How we scored: everything above comes from your live public listing — the 3-month availability calendar, photo set, title, description and review signals, captured on the date on the cover. Scores weight what guests see first when deciding to click: title and cover photo, then photos, then copy. No third-party estimates are used. Demand signal reflects how much of your next 90 days is already booked — steady bookings mean demand exists and presentation, not location, is the constraint. Where the diagnosis cites your review count, that's the listing's own public review total at capture (a new listing starts at zero even when the host profile has reviews).

What's holding you back

- 1 With a nightly rate of £422.2, you're 302% above the cohort median of £104.90, which may be limiting your occupancy potential
- 2 Your 53.3% occupancy rate is only slightly above the cohort median of 48.9%, indicating room for improvement in attracting more guests
- 3 With 56 photos, you have more than twice the median photo count of 23, but may benefit from reordering them to showcase your most unique features first

The rooftop terrace with hot tub should be the cover photo, as it's the most unique and attention-grabbing feature of the apartment. This will help to immediately differentiate the listing from others in the area.
