*Realistic upside assumes filling one third of your open nights at your current rate — a conservative scenario, not a promise; open nights may include dates you have deliberately blocked. How we scored: everything above comes from your live public listing — the 3-month availability calendar, photo set, title, description and review signals, captured on the date on the cover. Scores weight what guests see first when deciding to click: title and cover photo, then photos, then copy. No third-party estimates are used. Demand signal reflects how much of your next 90 days is already booked — steady bookings mean demand exists and presentation, not location, is the constraint. Where the diagnosis cites your review count, that's the listing's own public review total at capture (a new listing starts at zero even when the host profile has reviews).

What's holding you back

- 1 Raise the nightly rate from £85.6 to around £100 ($\approx +17\%$) – you're 45% below the market median yet already have 65.2% occupancy, so a modest increase can boost revenue without sacrificing bookings.
- 2 Add high-value amenities such as a balcony or patio, guaranteed parking, and a TV with streaming services – these are the top gaps and can justify a higher price point.
- 3 Upload at least 8 high-resolution photos covering the living room, bedroom, kitchen, bathroom, and any view; set the living room shot as the cover to improve visual appeal and click-through rates.

Amenity gaps guests filter for

- Outdoor space (balcony, garden, or patio)
- Dedicated parking or free on-street parking information
- Entertainment options (TV, streaming services, games)

Use a bright, wide-angle shot of the living area as the cover photo—it showcases the main gathering space and immediately conveys the apartment's size and style.
